"Light, projections, and sound are combined to give a professional and carefully crafted impression."

Dj Arthro is a Swedish producer, Dj, controllerist, and lecturer. By utilizing his musical and technical understanding, Dj Arthro finds ways to express his music. With his trusty spaceship, currently in version 3.0, Dj Arthro gains full control over sound, light, and video on stage. This technical controllerism results in his own brand of catchy EDM with a playful touch.

Using the world of digital drums as a take-off point, every new gig gives valuable insight into how the music and technology should evolve. What started of as a personal hand drum has gradually evolved into the rig of digital tools that is the spaceship today. These are the tools that facilitate bringing the crazy thoughts and ideas of Dj Arthro out of his head and into the ears of the world.

Dj Arthro is also pursuing another project alongside fellow innovators Tim Yates (Hackoustics) and Vahakn Matossian (Human Instruments): "Loopfree". This startup is a wireless loop controller aimed towards, but not exclusively for, disabled musicians. Loopfree continues Dj Arthro's habit of ever marching forward in the spirit of innovation.
